interests of the people. Let us repeat that this plan was adopted on the 2d of July, long before any of the aspirants for senatorial honors had formally announced themselves as candidates, and the blic will see at once that no unfairness as etween candidates could be imputed to the an adopted by this committee. No memof the committee ever made known his preferences in that body, and no action was ever taken in the interest of any candidate, except Colonel Knight, as will be presently xplained. Colonel Holladay's and Colonel meht's friends remain upon the commitee, and unanimously endorse, sustain, and youch for the truth of all the statements made in this address.

so much for the reasons for adopting the delegate plan. Now for the plan itself. Here is the whole of the senatorial plan:

There shall be chosen in each ward of the city of Elchmond, by the Conservative voters therein, three delegates for each voting precinct therein, to expresent the city of Elchmond in a convention to a thereafter held for the nomination of candidates. represent the district composed of the city of

The persons in each ward, being three ber for each voting precinct, as provided for in Sec-tion 1, who shall receive the highest number of votes cast for delegates to the Senatorial Nominating Convention shall be declared elected to represent the city of Richmond in said convention."

There is the whole plan. Whether the wisest plan that could have been framed or not, its tairness is unquestionable. In this tespect it vindicates itself. It needs no delence. Every fair-minded man will see at once that it is so simple and plain that a child can understand it, and so entirely destitute of machinery that it is fairness itself. It will be seen that it provides nothing as to the candidates or their names, and did not contemplate allowing the commissioners of election to receive tickets having candidates' names at the head of them. On the evening before the election, however, the committee held a meeting, and at that meeting tickets were presented which not only had uponothem the names of proposed delegates to the Senatorial Convention but also the name of Colonel W. C. Knight. The committee, fearing that it would subject itsell to public censure and render itself liable to charges of unfairness if it should reluse to allow these tickets to be received did on that evening, in the interest of Colonel Knight, if of anybody, pass the following

Resolved, That the commissioners of election are hereby instructed to receive and count the ballots of all persons entitled to vote whether the licket has upon it the names of the candidates for to prevent fickets being thrown out because containing the name of a candidate. The committee had designed to secure the election of unpledged delegates. Their purpose was to induce the voters to select and send good men to a convention, without expressing preference for candidates. This part of the plan was in strict contrast with that nort Mind, now, this action was only designed to prevent fickets being thrown out because the plan was in strict contrast with that part which related to the House of Delegates. But finding tickets prepared with Colonel haight's name on them, they were led to believe that there was a misapprehension in the public mind on the subject that would cause many persons to have their votes not counted unless they provided beforehand that tickets should not be thrown out because containing a candidate's name. It was to secure the counting of every vote that this resolution was adopted.

It was not designed that any notice should be taken or any separate count made of those tickets having candidates' names on them, or even that the delegates should know in whose interest they were elected, even if the tickets should show it. For it was never designed that the voter should choose the candidates, but only that they should choose delegates to a convention which should select them of its own free judgment. That the action of the caudidates or their friends, Colonel Knight and his friends included, on the day of the primary election, defeated in this respect the purposes of the committee we do not deny. But that fault, if fault it was, cannot be charged to the committee. They designed for the people to choose delegates, not to express preferences for candidates. The people chose to do the latter in doing the former, and thereby really took the matter in their ewn hands. We did not even print, nor cause to be printed, any tickets of any sort, On the contrary, Messrs. Wortham, Johnson. Holladay, Knight, and Tanner, who attended one meeting of our committee, were at that meeting personally informed that this committee would have nothing to do with the printing of tickets for senatorial delegates.

Such, indeed, was the strength of purpose found in the committee on this point that one member (a friend of Colonel Knight) earnestly opposed allowing any ticket to be counted with a candidate's name on it, and when told that Colonel Knight's tickets were SCARFS in all the latest styles from 10c. up to already so prepared, and would be lost, he said that Colonel Knight might prepare others if he chose, for the plan was to bave no vote between candidates, and indeed, if possible, to have no candidates before the people but to have them before the Convention only. The truth is this whole difficulty, so far as to the charges and complaints made o the plan of the primary election, has grown out of the fact that the candidates or their friends (Colonel Knight and his friends included) undertook to come directly before the people and to make the primary election the field of their battle and the voters the arbiters of victory, when it was designed that no such thing should be done, but that a carefully-selected convention of good men should constitute the tribunal to which candidates should submit their claims.

If that resolution had not been adopted there would never have been any misapprehension of, nor dissatisfaction with, the plan on the part of the public. And we affirm in the most emphatic manner that that resolution was adopted more for the purpose of accommodating and satisfying Colonel Knight and his friends than for any other purpose whatever. No ticket baving any other candidate's name, or any two candidates' names upon it, was ever seen in our committee room; and if, as we have no doubt was the case, members of the committee knew of the existence of such other tickets the committee generally did not, and no mention of the fact was made in the meeting and no member asked for the passage of th resolution in the interest of any other candidate.

At the same meeting of the committee Mr. Drinkard offered a resolution so far changing the plan of election as to provide that the votes cast for the candidates themselves (not the delegates, take notice,) should be counted, and the result reported to this committee. But this resolution was rejected all of Colonel Knight's friends voting against t, as they now testify. The plan of electing delegates was thus, so far as the committee was concerned, adhered to and carried out fairly and impartially.

When the convention assembled the cre dentials of only one delegate were contested He was in favor of the nomination of Mr. Holladay. The President ruled, and the Convention by a formal vote decided, that he was entitled to his seat. This act of itself shows The election of delegates to a Sena- that not only was the Convention itself, as LADIES and MISSES STRIPED HOSE; election and qualification of its own members, but that it was called upon to exercise, and did exercise, this power. If Colonel Knight had any grounds for contesting the election of the delegates in any ward of the city, or any district in the county, he ought to have gone to that body with his complaint. The committee having ticket; and, thirdly, because the charge of the subject (Mr. William H. voting directly for candidates being Haxall chairman) would have done him justice if it had required the surrender of their own seats in the body. This reference to the powers of the Convention is deemed necessary because Colonel Knigh and his friends have thought it proper, becoming, and just to complain of this committee that we have refused to usurp the powers of that body. Every reflecting man. however, must know that if we should undertake to revise the action of senatorial and congressional conventions the people of the Senatorial Convention, in of this city would visit their strongest conponse to an interrogatory, stated emphati- demnation upon us, whilst the people of the during its session that the members counties would scorn to hold fraternal intercourse with a city whose party authorities should thus dare to set aside or in any way interfere with the action of delegates elected by the voters themselves. We think the facts we have stated fully vindicate and establish the fairness of the plan under which the primary election was held. Now, we submit it to our fellow-citizens whether they can justify themselves in breaking up the organization of our party, impairing its strength, and taking away what has proved so efficient a protection in the past against Radical rule merely because the practical results of a plan of election fair in itself have not proved satisfactory to them? And if encouraged by this division among us, and by the obstacles which the bitter controversies of this canvass are likely to interpose against our harmonious and efficient action as a party hereafter, the Radicals should seize the coming spring elections as an opportunity to possess themselves of this city government, and should triumph in the effort because of our dissension, our friends who now sport with the very life of the party would be able to draw but poor consolation from their success, should they be successful, in having defeated at this election one or more of the regular nominees of the party.
